GONG OF TIME

EDITOR'S WELCOME

Almost everyone has played a video game, whether it was on a console or a computer or even a smartphone! They span generations from the curious people who tried Pong to the modern gamers of today.

Despite the dismissal of video games by some, it has become an integral part of America's culture. Millions of people play video games, using them as an escape from life.

Buck's Rock is also an escape for many campers, CITs and staff. There's a reason why people flock to Buck's Rock. Camp is a safe haven and a break from a constant barrage of school, work and stress.

Campers can let go of their homework and summer reading for two months and enjoy the activities Buck's Rock has to offer. Anxiety fades to the back of their minds as they engage in creative endeavors that aren't available during the year.

Video games challenge the player and test their concentration and speed. Buck's Rock tests campers, encouraging them to be more adventurous, creative, and independent. Their skills grow throughout the years, to the point of making large, elaborate projects they never would have dreamed of doing in the past.

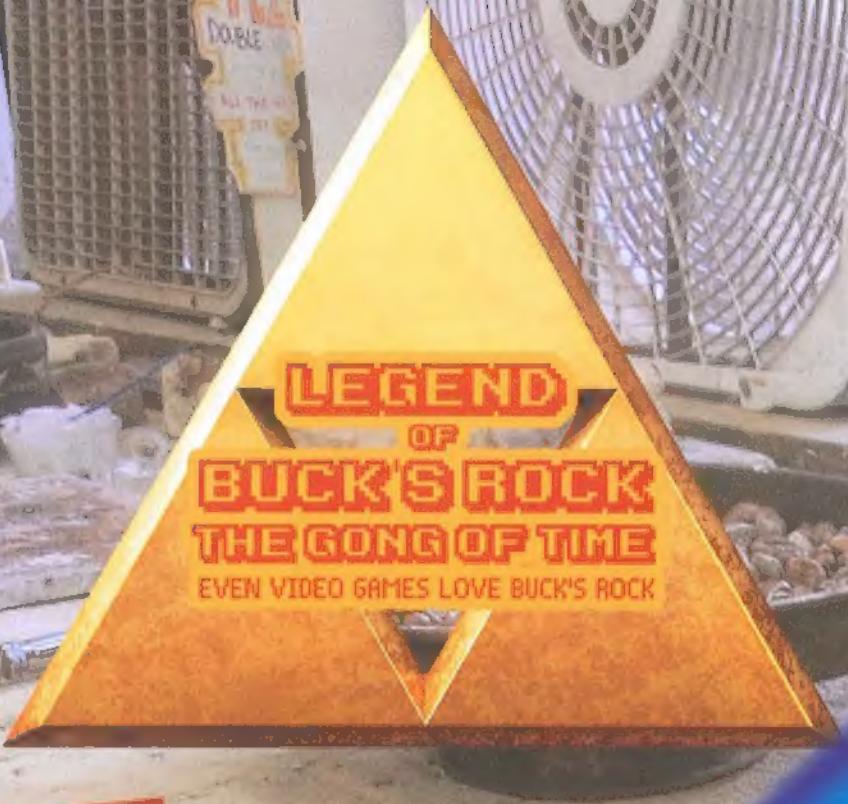

Eventually when campers "level up" and leave camp, they enter the world with newfound knowledge that will help them in years to come.

This is my 6th year at Buck's Rock, and each summer pushed the boundaries of what I was comfortable with. Besides being able to relax after a tough year of AP classes and essays, I've also had opportunities to try many different activities, such as performing in a Festival musical and weaving a scarf. Every year I discover something new about myself that I never thought about before. I can write, sew, weave, act, and create. I'm so glad I have the opportunity to go to Buck's Rock.

Fleen!

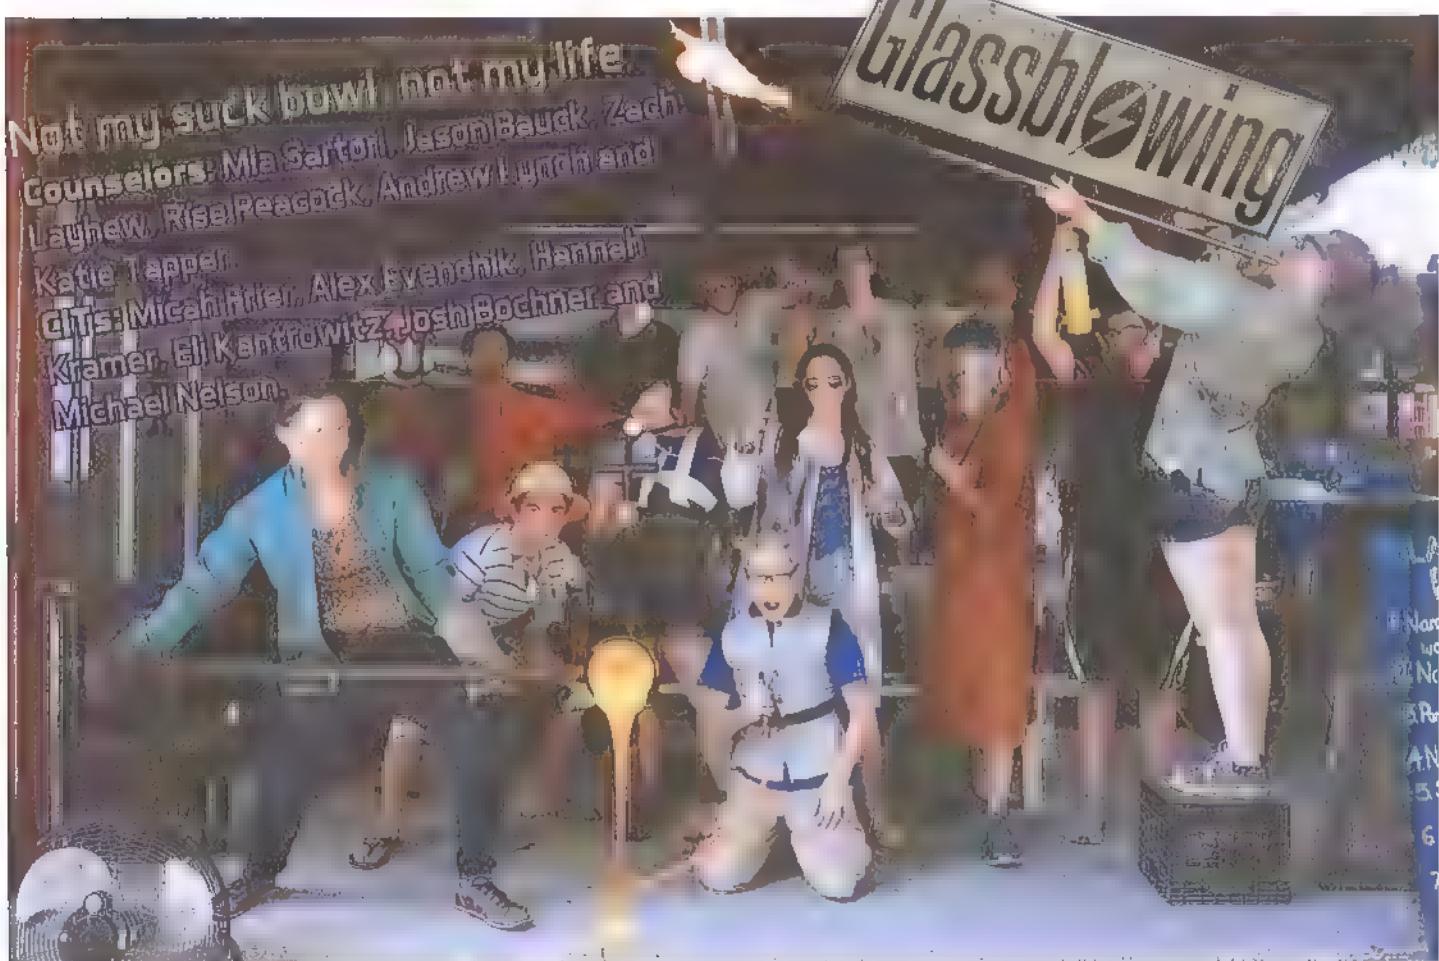

I'm sure we have all heard of the main attractions of Fleen: mainly the strawberry ice cream. But when I traveled through the gong I realized there was a lot more than meets the eye. After successfully jumping backwards through the gong three times I felt a stream of air pull me through a dark tunnel. As I was being pulled I saw millions of speckles of light zooming past me at breath-taking speeds. After what felt like an hour the air stopped and I started to fall. I was only falling for a few seconds when I landed in a pool. Something immediately stood out, the pool was filled with a thick pink liquid. I dove under and swam around. Some of the liquid went into my mouth and I tasted strawberry! I had found the famous ice cream of Fleen! I figured most Fleen explorers had gotten this far and had gone back, but I was determined to press on and explore Fleen more. I swam to the edge of the ice cream pool and climbed out. I was expecting to be all wet from the pool but I was perfectly dry and comfortable. As I started walking I saw a movement and a sound of scuffling feet in the distance. I ran towards the sound and saw a monkey staring at me. This monkey was holding a monkey wrench but I noticed something odd about this particular wrench. It was left-handed!! I blinked uncontrollably because left-handed monkey wrenches are nearly impossible to come by!! Suddenly the monkey took off across the grassy plain. I followed it until I saw a factory in the distance. It was spewing rainbows out of the smokestacks. So that's where they come from! I approached the factory and read the sign above the main entrance. It said, "Sky Hook and Three Sided Tape Production Inc." I walked inside. Monkeys walking around in hard hats took new sky hooks and crawled up ladders to pin up the sky. I followed one monkey up a ladder until I passed through the sky and entered The Beyond. On the other side of the sky I saw giant tubs of glitter. More monkeys were pressing buttons which I assumed released the glitter. The sight was truly breathtaking. I climbed back down the ladder and went to return back to camp. I walked across the plain, occasionally looking upwards at the sparkling glitter, until I reached a little hut. Inside I saw an old couch with a sign painted above it. "Sit down to exit." I sat down on the sagging couch and fell through the cushion. After a few minutes of falling I popped out of a different couch's cushion. I looked around and realized I was sitting on the couch in the Batik Shop. My journey was over but I could still smell the strawberries.

"BRONZE FALL" BY MAX HELLER

ARTWORK BY
LYDIA WIERNIK-PARTENIO

RED
BY STELLA PLATERO

THE RAIN SLAMMED AGAINST THE WINDOWS OF HIS CAR, MUCH LIKE THE HEART IN MY CHEST. HIS HANDS, COATED IN RED, UNINTENTIONALLY SENT SHIVERS DOWN MY SPINE. LEGS TREMBLING AND LIPS QUIVERING, I AVERTED MY GAZE TO SOMEWHERE OTHER THAN HIM. "DON'T YOU GET IT?" HE SAID, WATCHING AS I DRAGGED A NERVOUS HAND THROUGH MY HAIR, ATTEMPTING TO DISTRACT MYSELF FROM HIS DARING WORDS AND MENACING SOUL.

"I DON'T WANT TO BE LIKE THIS," MY VOICE WAS WEAK; IT WAS OBVIOUS I FEARED HIM. I LOOKED TO HIM, SWALLOWING BACK MY TEARS AND BITING BACK MY SCREAMS. AND I WATCHED AS HE LAUGHED HIS HEAVENLY LAUGH, CLAPPING HIS HANDS MANIACALLY AS A SINGLE TEAR FELL DOWN MY CHEEK.

"DARLING," HE SPOKE, LEANING BACK IN THE DRIVER'S SEAT AND CLOSING HIS EYES SOFTLY, "YOU ALREADY ARE." AT THE SOUND OF HIS WORDS I KNEW IT WOULD BE IMPOSSIBLE TO ESCAPE. THE DOORS WERE LOCKED, AS WAS THE TERRIFYING FEELING IN THE PIT OF MY STOMACH.

I WIPE MY EYES WITH THE BACK OF MY HAND, THEN SAID: "I WANT TO BE WITH YOU." HE DIDN'T MOVE AT ALL. HIS BROWN EYES WERE STILL FLUTTERED SHUT AND HIS ARMS REMAINED CROSSED OVER HIS CHEST. IT WAS ALMOST AS IF HE HADN'T HEARD ME AT ALL.

"YOU ARE WITH ME," I FROWNED, DRAWING MY EYES OVER HIS APPEARANCE. THE BLOOD ON HIS HANDS HAD STAINED HIS SHIRT, JUST AS HE HAD STAINED MY LIFE. I LONGED TO HAVE HIM OPEN THE CAR DOOR, UNLOCK IT SO I WOULDN'T HAVE THE WORRY OF GETTING CAUGHT ON MY SHOULDERS, BUT I STRAINED FROM ASKING, SIMPLY BECAUSE I WAS NOT READY TO WALK OUT OF HIS LIFE.

AND THEN IT WAS SILENT. AND SO WAS THE RAIN.

HOW TO SURVIVE BUCK'S ROCK

BY SARA MILLER

I woke up to the sound of the gong. Groaning, I opened my eyes and saw the words, "NEW GAME" bobbing in front of my face. The white pixelated letters seared into my eyes, and I looked at them, stunned. I lay under my blanket and huddled there for a few moments. Is this a dream? I peeked over the covers slowly. To my surprise, the letters were still there, though starting to fade.

Maybe I ate too much cereal last night, I thought, and crawled out of bed. I surveyed my surroundings, and realized something was very different. My room was pixelated! I looked for my clothing, but instead of my usual graphic t-shirts and jeans shorts, I only saw a row of leather armor hanging up in the closet. Where my shelves used to be instead held a variety of weapons, including swords, maces, and other objects I didn't remember buying.

CHOOSE A CLASS!

I stumbled backwards, and see four words hovering above me. "Mage", "Warrior", "Healer", and "Rogue".

"Um, Mage I guess," I said.

Next thing I know, I was dressed in long blue robes and a wizard hat. I clutched a glowing staff.

"What the—"

LEVEL ONE. HEALTH AND ENERGY FULL. ARE YOU READY?"

There was a WHOOSH sound, and I found myself on the path to the dining hall. There was nobody else around. Instead of birds chirping, epic instrumental music played in the background. Once again, everything was pixelated. I started to walk when I saw a giant chipmunk bounding towards me, its teeth bared in a snarl. A red health bar floated above its head. I dodged as it swiped at me with sharp claws.

I lifted my staff and a ray of light hit the chipmunk right between the eyes. It squealed in terror and the battle was on. I zapped the beast again and again, lowering its health slowly until it finally dropped dead.

YOU GAIN FIVE GOLD COINS AND THREE POUNDS OF CHIPMUNK MEAT. YOU ARE NOW LEVEL TWO!"

I picked up the coins scattered on the ground and took a bite out of the meat. Accepting my fate, I started to sob, knowing there was no way to escape my digital hell.

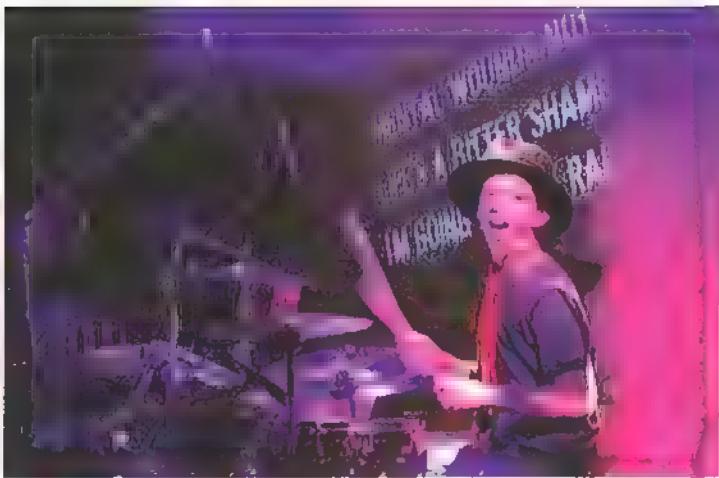

Through the campus have I gone.
Ah, but bagels found I none,
On whose face I might approve
This cream cheese's force in stirring food.

GOING ON: BUCK'S ROCK

Once there was a mysterious land called Buck's Rock. Inhabited by kind people with a passion for the arts, it was a peaceful haven. A young lad lived there and went on many adventures in Buck's Rock. His name was Kenny, the legendary hero. A native of the magical Pub Forest, he rose from humble beginnings and saved the land multiple times. Always wearing a green tunic and cap, he fought evil that plagued his kingdom with a notebook and a smile. As he raised his mighty pen and paper, monsters fled terrified of the mighty prose he would create. His writing banished evil creatures and he was Buck's Rock's savior.

Kenny would often defer to the Great Bob Tree for help. The Great Bob Tree was a wise spirit that protected his native territory of the Pub Forest. He had been there for as long as anyone could remember and offered knowledge to any passerby. He was the figurehead of Pub. He was one of the few that had access to the Pub archives and would retrieve sacred documents for eager explorers. Without him, the Pub Forest and Buck's Rock itself would shrivel and die. Bob was also surprisingly good at fixing printer jams, for a tree.

Kenny also asked for help from one of the Great Fairies in Buck's Rock, Emma. She was a powerful magical being that offered healing, wisdom, and constructive criticism to any gothic writer. She could often be found in the Pub Garden, where her words were carefully listened to. Without her, Kenny and the other inhabitants of Buck's Rock would be aimless and probably do stupid things. When people heard her holy command, "Nobody print!" everyone listened and even the printer would quiver in fear. When people did print without permission, they would never be seen again.

Kenny often received quests from Princess Bridget, ruler of Buck's Rock. Her kindness knew no bounds, and she often helped her subjects use InDesign and make fortunetellers. She was very powerful, and her ability to make crafts was amazing. Her secret power, making smaller and smaller fortunetellers out of tiny scraps of paper, defied time and space.

However, her alter ego, Nate, was a strange and mysterious person. Bridget could transform into Nate seamlessly, ready to kick butt. After dropkicking her enemies through a window, Nate would play some sick tunes with her magical weapon, YouTube. As classic rock songs flowed through the computer, her enemies would cover their ears. Unable to hear such beautiful music, her Photoshop skills were excellent and many campers understood how layers work because of her. She also wore funky flea market clothing and six inch heels.

PUBLICATIONS

Kenny occasionally ran across Greg, the travelling Mask Salesman. A man of many interests, Greg went to the Pub Forest sporadically, disappearing for many hours to what he called "the office". Sometimes Kenny and Greg would share a writing workshop, but when the clock struck 3 o' clock, Greg would disappear.

Kenny's enemy was Luisdorf, a villain of the highest order. Kenny spread the power of words and beauty, while Luisdorf would use the dark and confusing arts of Photoshop to fight the forces of good. With his extraordinary ability to learn new Adobe programs in a day, he was a formidable opponent, and many times Buck's Rock would fall to his evil powers. Kenny always defeated him though. Luisdorf also liked to salsa dance, and that was one of his signature boss powers.

Last but not least was Kenny's fairy companion, Sara. Sara could be repetitive at times, saying, "Hey!" "Listen!" "Look!" "Watch out!" over and over again. However, she was assigned to Kenny in his journeys, and she became a welcome and familiar companion to help him. She was a talented young writer, and learned much of the craft from Kenny.

Maybe one day she could become a mighty hero too! She liked spooky things, surprising for such a light-hearted fairy.

Such an amazing crew of heroes would never have been possible in anywhere but Buck's Rock. In a land where anything was possible, Kenny and his friends went on awesome quests and were able to help many curious children with the art of Publications.
